Agriculture.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Fredericksburg, Va., May 15.—A hig farmers' meeting was held at Spotsylvania Courthouse to-day. The speakers were Governor W. H. Mann. Dr. Bradford Knapp, of the United States Agricultural Department; T. O. Sandy and Miss Elia G. Agnew, of the State Agricultural Department; T. Stockeley Coleman, of Spotsylvania, presided. The speaking was along the lines of improved methods in agriculture, better seed and better results. Particular attention was paid to encouraging demonstration work and the formation of boys' corn clubs.

Miss Agnew urged the girls to cooperate for agricultural results and assured them that they could play an important part in the advancement of farm work as well as in other lines. It was an all-day meeting. Dinner was served from baskets brought by the various familles, and the occasion was a great success.

of every good joke that passed current in Ireland.

The present Lord Killanin has traveled extensively in the United States, and, unlike some other visitors, has had nothing but good to say of the people who live under the Stars and Stripes. "Simple and candid, without pretence or concealment, the American people, racey of their own wide land, are free and easy in manner, speech and dress. There is no secreey or hypocrisy about them—"and a good deal more in the same strain, which it must be a pleasure for a patriotic American to read, coming from such a man as Lord Killanin, who, although still only Porty-five, has had considerable experience in politics and public affairs, as well as in literature.
